

Monday, May 12, 2008

Interstate commerce has its limits in criminal law.

Â Bill of RightsÂ (From public domain.)Â Â Praised be Orlando federal judge Gregory Presnell for delineating the limits of federal jurisdiction in criminal prosecutions, in finding the federal sex offender statute unconstitutional when it comes to criminalizingÂ the failure to register with a state agency as a sex offender. Thanks to a fellow listserv member for bringing this PowersÂ opinion to my attention. Jon Katz

Posted by Jon Katz in Criminal Defense at 00:00